Dollar Limitations for 2018

Various retirement plan limits are subject to annual cost-of-living and/or statutory adjustments. The IRS has issued the limits for 2018. The change in plan-related limits is always a reminder that the end of the year is fast approaching. Often, December 31 (or January 1) is a date by which certain actions relative to plans must be taken.

Some of the more commonly applicable limits for 2018 are as follows:

Maximum Contribution to 401(k), Profit Sharing, and other Defined Contribution Plans. $55,000 (increased from 2017).

401(k), 403(b), and 457(b) Employee Contribution Limit. $18,500 (increased from 2017).

Age 50 Catch-up Contribution Limit. $6,000 (unchanged from 2017).

Maximum Annual Recognized Compensation Limit. $275,000 (increased from 2017). To limit retirement plan accumulations for high paid employees, as well as to increase contributions for non-high paid employees, retirement plans generally may only recognize compensation up to this limit.

Highly Compensated Employee (“HCE”) Threshold. $120,000 (unchanged from 2017). Under ERISA’s nondiscrimination rules, the employee population is divided into two groups – the highly compensated employees and the nonhighly compensated employees. A highly compensated employee generally is an employee who owns more than 5% of the employer sponsoring the plan or whose compensation in the preceding year exceeds the dollar threshold.

Defined Benefit Plan Limit. $220,000 (increased from 2017). In a defined benefit plan, the law limits the annual pension payable to the participant upon retirement (as opposed to limiting the annual additions going into a defined contribution plan). If you desire to possibly accumulate significant retirement benefits over and above the $55,000 annual defined contribution limit, a defined benefit plan should be explored.

Social Security Taxable Wage Base. $128,700 (increased from 2017). This figure affects the way in which employer contributions are allocated to participants under “integrated” plans.
